Summary

As an experienced software developer, I have refined my skills in development, system organization, and architecture through a variety of projects. I have strong expertise in front-end development, where I work autonomously, actively participate in discussions, and implement significant improvements to user interfaces. Although my primary focus is on front-end, I am also constantly working to enhance my knowledge of back-end development and databases, with an emphasis on creating and integrating APIs.

Currently, I am finishing my undergraduate degree and preparing to start a postgraduate program in Full Stack Web Development. In parallel, I have been working on personal projects that drive my technical growth and broaden my perspective on the end-to-end development of systems.

My journey in technology began early, and today I have clear career goals, with a continuous commitment to excellence in my field. I am always seeking to learn and share knowledge in a collaborative manner, with a focus on mutual growth.
